

ARMSTRONG'S WOODS OF TERROR

On October 18th, 2019, The Haunt Rater crew visited Armstrong's Woods of Terror in Port Royal Pennsylvania. Armstrong's is a non-profit haunt and donates proceeds to the local 4-H club. All of the actors are volunteers and absolutely love scaring people! When you're driving down Route 75 in Port Royal you may ask yourself, "Where the heck is this place?" or "Am I going the right way?", but rest assured you will find it. They have a large sign along 75 that is lit up just for you! Turn onto the road and travel approx. $\frac{3}{4}$ to 1 mile and the haunt will be on your right.

You start off by hopping on a wagon that takes you to the "Pitch Black Corn Maze". There is no lighting, no guidelines, but plenty of scares! Beware of the Children of the Corn! Move quickly before these creatures of the corn snatch you up and you are never heard from again. The Haunt Rater crew on this night had 3 GROWN men. There is no possible way these kids are going to scare us...Wrong! Some of them got us twice.

If you make it out of the corn alive, or without messing your pants, you will come to the entrance of The Trail of Terror. You're greeted by a not so friendly face who assures you that you are just a guest and you will not be harmed. "HAHA", is what we hear as we walk away. As you make your way through the trail, creatures, ghosts and monsters jump out and give you a scare you won't forget. When you finally make it to the end, or should I say if you make it, the hay wagon is waiting to take you back to your vehicle.

We made it through Armstrong's Woods of Terror! Umm...Why is the tractor slowing down? We are pulling over now. The tractor shuts down. Creepy carnival music starts playing...CLOWNS!! The clowns come at us left and right. If you're a clown fan like me then, you will absolutely love these clowns. They are great actors and some of the scariest clowns that I have seen.

As a Charity Haunt, Armstrong's Woods of Terror does a great job in using parents and youth alike to provide the best scares. Actors were well placed throughout the attraction and provided great entertainment. We recommend visiting them and showing support as proceeds go to help the local 4-H organization. Great job to all involved!
